Communication Design Master's Degree

“Places Dear to My Heart”

There are already several initiatives inviting citizens from around the world to report each year beautiful landscapes or architectural treasures in a state of disrepair or disuse in their countries – places cherished in the hearts of all – allowing for restoration work to be commenced on the places receiving the most votes. We ask you to identify a “place dear to your heart” and to draw up a communication plan that will attract broad interest and, therefore, the largest possible amount of financial contributions. Why should the place dear to your heart become “the” place dearest to all hearts?

- “Snapshots” of the market segments;
- Grassroots/viral-style communication campaign for each segment that they have identified, pointing out the distribution/communication channels;
- Communication key visuals (website, coordinated graphics, advertising campaign, guerrilla...) including an aggregate budget for the communication campaign (not including website set-up), though not mandatory, will be considered a plus.
